Shahab Fatheazam | Managing Director

Role at Lincoln International:

Shahab is a Managing Director of Lincoln International and head of the firm's Healthcare Group. Shahab leads transaction teams, manages key client relationships, and actively markets the firm's services on a global basis.

Advisory Experience:

Shahab has over 20 years of investment experience specializing in representing companies in the healthcare industry, having advised clients in a variety of transactions, including merger and acquisition advisory, capital raising advisory (both debt and equity securities), technology licensing, and fairness opinions. His clients include leading private equity groups, public, and private companies. Shahab has significant experience working on cross-border transactions between the U.S., Europe, and Asia.

Industry Experience:

Shahab understands value drivers of healthcare companies and how to best position these companies. Over the last two decades, Shahab has specialized in the healthcare sector and has advised companies in the healthcare and pharmaceutical services, diagnostic, research tools, selective biotech, and medical technology situations. In addition to heading the healthcare effort of Lincoln, Shahab also serves on three boards of directors of private and public companies in the therapeutic and healthcare services sectors.

Past Affiliations:

Prior to joining Lincoln International in 2010, Shahab led the healthcare practice of GCA Savvian for five years and started its Chicago office. Among his client and transactional experience he successfully advised most of the firm's Japanese merger transactions in the U.S. during his tenure.

From 1994 to 2004, Shahab was a senior partner at Vector Securities International, among the first boutique firms focused on the healthcare sector. Shahab expanded the firm's practice to include healthcare services and the diagnostic and research tools sectors in both banking and research.

Shahab began his career with the firm of Kidder, Peabody & Co. where he served in the international investment banking department working closely with the London, Geneva, Paris, and Tokyo offices.

Academic Credentials:

Shahab earned a Master of Business Administration degree from Columbia University. He graduated with honors from Cambridge University with a Bachelors of Arts and Master Degree. He serves on several boards of healthcare life science and service companies, both public and private.
